Key construction conference returns

The “Building Construction Technology Expo (BCT Expo 2022)” will return to a face-to-face setting for Thai and international exhibitors to re-engage their markets, at Impact Exhibition Hall 8, Muang Thong Thani, from tomorrow to Friday.

This is the region’s key exhibition platform for the construction industry. It will showcase a comprehensive range of building and construction technology, digital, machinery system and equipment, and products and solutions from over 100 exhibiting companies to more than 4,000 potential clients from Thailand and the surrounding Asean region.

In keeping with digital transformation trends, the event will continue with its theme “Towards Digitalization Of The Building And Construction Industry — Are You Ready?” with a focus on digital transformation of the building and construction industry to help accelerate changes in every aspect of architectural design, building and construction through the adoption of digital technologies.

The expo will also be an essential regional knowledge exchange and networking platform for the building and construction communities to meet to share the latest technologies, updates, issues and trends through its series of interactive conferences, seminars and workshops.

This is also an opportunity for local and international exhibitors to re-engage their markets and re-establish their market presence in a face-to-face market setting after a two-year hiatus.
